

THE BLADE'S BLESSING THE ARDENT

People who chose to follow Arthur on his journey to meet Brigit and gain the sword. Whether peasant, noble, knight, or vagabond they have banded together. Some have their eyes turned to a brighter future, some stand in support of Arthur and his cadre, and some just plain aren't sure how they got there but they're along for the ride all the same!

Louise/Louis the Hammer

A peasant of Camelot with remarkable strength of arm and a golden heart to match. Though from simple origins, they are a Champion of the People and follow Arthur's fledgeling court out of a sincere hope he will bring the common people a better life.

Simon/Simone the Shield

The sibling of Louise/Louis. They followed their sibling with a shared sense of duty and hope...and to keep them from burning anything down. They are in tandem with their sibling in heart and head, though are often the cooler-headed of the two.

General Bell

An older individual who may or may not have actually ever been military. They are very loud and braggadocious, often telling long (and exaggerated) tales of their exploits. This character would potentially be our white side rouster.

Aaron/Erin the Believer

A supposed 'quack' scholar who carries around piles of (admittedly incorrect and made up) research about The Unseen Realm and the fae. Naturally, when they found out a retinue was going to the Unseen Realm they had to offer their expertise...no matter how bad it might actually be. They are delightfully unaware of how misinformed they are..

Grog the Quartermaster

Where there's an army, there are hungry mouths. Grog knows a thing or two about feeding/arming an adventure. They do tend to worry too much though. Do you have the right coat for this adventure? Dear, that armor looks so old. I have a much better sword for you...

Ari the Brave

A bright-eyed young squire of Arthur's retinue. They grew up on stories of adventure and valor and they want nothing more than to prove themselves and become a knight despite their low birth. They are naive and headstrong with a compass that sometimes points a little TOO true north.

Pluris

One of the three members of Lancelot's Unofficial Official Cheer Squad. They are noble-born and have been trying to get Lancelot to marry them for years. They see themselves as a true Alpha and with Lancelot they would be Camelot's new power couple.

Elaine

One of the three members of Lancelot's Unofficial Official Cheer Squad. They are a true admirer of Lancelot's strength and nobility after Lancelot rescued them from the clutches of a witch during his "adventuring phase".

Brisen

One of the three members of Lancelot's Unofficial Official Cheer Squad. They are Elaine's loyal retainer and carry some power of enchantment. They sometimes sneakily try to undermine Pluris to make Elaine look better in comparison. Practically a professional wingman.
